

WE HAVE REACHED 100 ISSUES!

It is a time for joy and assessment, but also of projects and memories about the great endless story of celebrating knowledge.

Animated by the sense of professional fulfillment and looking back into the 25 years since the commencement of the project celebrated today, we are enjoying the journey that has taken us this far and the accomplishments that have not always been easy to obtain, as intellectual creativity and spiritual enrichment require special context. In times of celebration, however, the roughness of labor is long forgotten, and all that matters now, and always will, is the comforting triumph of research done for today but especially for tomorrow.

We are grateful to the initiators of this project, to those who carried it further, to the authors who have seen the Land Forces Academy Review as an open gate for the dissemination of their research results. It has actually been mutually beneficial.

We have made your efforts known and you have made us known worldwide.

We have provided the framework, and you have enriched knowledge, pushed boundaries and sparked debates.

Yes, we have reached 100 issues! And still counting!
